Subject: The Laurie Hollywood Issue - Some Input

Hello All...

On August 6, 2007 my wife and I adopted a mixed breed dog from the animal shelter. After we chose her, Laurie went through the adoption process with us. The first thing she did was tell us that the dog had been taken from her owner because she was charged with biting an elderly woman in the apartment complex. She gave us a detailed discussion about the situation and wanted to be sure that we still wanted to take the chance.

As a dog lover whose father had raised up to 50 German Shorthair Pointers and always had 4-5 house dogs I wasn't scared off by this. The dog had the most amazing vibes. We took her home with us knowing to keep our eyes open.

She (Samantha) was the sweetest, smartest, loving dog I had ever met. The thought that she might have been denied this opportunity is very depressing.

So my point is that Laurie was extremely professional and totally upfront about the biting incident. It is not logical that a person like this would not have told these people about the dogs' histories that are being bantered around.

Hasta Pasta...
Scott
